

Revenge In Kind Synopses

Long Synopsis

He hates women. George Lehman stalks them for fun, rapes them when he wants, and kills them. He's been at it a long time, outsmarting the cops, changing towns when they get too close. Now he is Dallas, starting everything over.

She has had enough. Rapists who get away with their crimes have pushed her over the edge. Now the Woman In Black is getting even—her way. She stalks them. One she castrates; another she kills and mutilates. She makes the punishment fit their crime. She thinks of it as revenge in-kind.

The two sets of sex crimes have Detective Chris Coxon baffled. Are there two criminals or one? Why the mutilations? How can there be no forensic evidence? When Coxon and his colleagues face one dead end after another, he finally turns to Police Psychologist Sarah Scott for help.

As the police try to solve the mysteries, the relationship between Coxon and Scott evolves. But Coxon gets more than he bargained for; he must deal with Scott's complicated personal history. It is a wrenching experience that forces him to challenge his most basic assumptions about morality and justice.

At last the crimes are solved, but the process—and the unexpected answer—changes them forever.

Medium Synopsis

Dallas is the scene of bizarre sex crimes. George Lehman is a rapist who stalks and kills women. The Woman In Black stalks and takes revenge against rapists.

The crimes of the two perpetrators have Detective Chris Coxon and his cohorts baffled. Are there two criminals or one? Why the mutilations? How can there be no forensic evidence?

When Coxon and his colleagues face one dead end after another, he finally turns to Police Psychologist Sarah Scott for help. As their relationship evolves, Coxon gets more than he bargained for; he must deal with Scott's complicated personal history. It is a wrenching experience that forces him to challenge his most basic assumptions about morality and justice.

At last the crimes are solved, but the process—and the unexpected answer—changes them forever.

Short Synopsis

Stumped by brutal sex-mutilation crimes, Detective Chris Coxon turns to police psychologist Sarah Scott for help. As their relationship evolves, he must deal with Scott's complicated personal history, a wrenching experience that forces him to challenge his most basic assumptions about morality and justice. At last the crimes are solved, but Coxon is forever changed by both the process and the unexpected answer.